Plans for a cable supported athletic fieldhouse have been proposed by the structural engineering division of the Civil Engineering Dept. Calculations used in planning have been based on a seating capacity of 20,000. The department intends to assign graduate students to the projects as thesis problems.

Soviet Pianist At BYU Today

Beethoven's "Sonata in A flat major" will open the program of Yakov Zak, renowned Soviet pianist. Zak will perform at BYU today. The concert will be held in the Jong Concert Hall at 8:15 p.m. Zak will continue the program with three numbers by Chopin.

His first American tour in 1965 brought him enthusiastic audience and critical response throughout the country. He was welcomed as a virtuoso in the great Russian tradition.

Zak is a graduate of the Odessa Conservatory. When he played at the third International Chopin Competition in Warsaw in 1957, two years after his debut, he was named first-prize winner and also received a special award for the best performance of the composer's mazurkas.

Discussion Of Morals

Market Place this month will feature Dr. David H. Yarn, Jr., of the Philosophy Dept. Professor Yarn will lecture today at 4 p.m., room 179 JS on the topic, Contemporaneous Morals—What?—Why? Dr. Yarn has expressed his concern for the moral decline evident in our society and hopes to use this opportunity to explore the reasons for the decline as well as its implications for this generation. Dr. Yarn is a popular professor, the Bishop of an Orem ward, and father of a large family.

New Fieldhouse—May Be Reality

By Gail Gullekson
University Staff Writer

It may be of little comfort to those students who were unable to obtain tickets at the last basketball game, but there is a definite program in the works to prepare a new fieldhouse with adequate seating.

Dr. D. Allen Firmage, Professor of Engineering, described as "definitely qualified," studies being undertaken in the Civil Engineering Department, but was enthusiastic about the reception given to the project by the Athletic Department.

Economically, the athletic people have had their dreams for a fieldhouse limited to 23,000 capacity. The civil engineers are out to prove that there may be a design that will provide more seating for the same price, or at any rate good seating.

Dr. Firmage suggested two problems that will confront architects when plans for the new building become a reality: cost versus size, and cost versus type of building. He explained that the Civil Engineering Dept.'s structural engineering division had decided to tackle the problems in advance, "grasping the opportunity for practical study."

The economics of certain types of structures are given to graduate students as thesis problems. One was completed last year, and up to seven may be assigned this semester. The students work with a size factor, and Dr. Firmage obtained the 20,000 figure from Coach Stan Watt.

WHEN, NOT IF

The advantage for basketball fans is the when, and the question is no longer if, authorization is given to build a larger fieldhouse, the Athletics Dept. has home specifications ready. "We are prepared ahead rapidly to have permission for them," Dr. Firmage said.

The engineers are working on the premise that dome-roof type structures have the key to more and better seating. The Salt Palace City is now under construction in Salt Lake City.

Ten years ago the complex mathematics involved in dome roofs made their design impossible. Now, BYU students will use computers in their calculations.

BASIC PROBLEM

The basic problem, the professor explained, is that when a certain type of dome reaches to a certain span, it is no longer economical. So there are possibilities to be avoided, which can be established in advance. Also, the more accurate calculations are, the more economical they become.

The economics of certain types of structures are given to graduate students as thesis problems. One

Soviet pianist Yakov Zak will perform today at 8:15 p.m. in the Jong Concert Hall. Zak is now touring the U.S. and will end his visit with a New York Carnegie Hall appearance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IDEALS PROTECTED

Dear Editor:

If LDS ideals aren't protected at Brigham Young University, where will they be upheld?

We, as students, have an obligation to pursue truth without limitations." BYU students are free to study theories contrary to accepted LDS teachings, and our library is well stocked with such literature. But if these notions are taught in our classrooms, and allowed to be expounded on our campus, without being categorized as against Mormon concepts, our freedom to hear and know the truth will be restricted.

We know that the truth shall make us free so how can truth, unless taught as such, intimidate or even uphold our freedom?

The BYU administration directs and controls what is taught on this campus, as they rightly should. We do have the right to question the administrators of this institution, but we also have the obligation of searching and researching the facts and determining whether we are basing our questions on

1) Concern that LDS ideals are being lessened, or

2) our personal private intellectual concepts, without taking into consideration that our administration is appointed, sustained, and controlled by the Board of Trustees which is also the First Presidency and Council of the Twelve, who we hold to be men inspired of God.

If we withdraw support of the university administration, we like to withdraw support of the men whom we claim to speak for the Lord.

CONJECTURE?

Although I was not present at the Student Forum held Tuesday, the comments of the Daily Universe concerning student "conjecture" and "hearsay" also seemed to me to be somewhat "unenlightened." I cannot say that I believe such a spy ring exists; however, certain members of the faculty seem to be aware or at least suspicious that this is the case.

I would like to cite just one example of which I am personally aware. In one of my classes last summer, the instructor was asked his opinion on a certain University policy. The instructor's reply was, "If I could look each of you in the eye, and know whether anyone is sitting in this class as a spy, I would tell you my opinion. But since I can't do that, I won't say what I believe. I like my job and want to keep it."

Your reply will probably be that this instructor was "misinformed." Perhaps this was the case, but if so, it is not the only case.

Whether or not there is any such restraint on the faculty, some members of the faculty have been given reason for fearing they are being restrained. As long as this feeling exists, academic freedom cannot exist.

Constitution Promoting Instability?

by David A. Thomas
ASBYN Attorney General

To propose a new constitution is to be accused of promoting instability in student government. The question of stability, or lack of it, is a legitimate one and student leaders choose to meet it head on.

First, they argue, the new constitution results primarily from a desire to have a document that reflects the real student government organization and functions. Student government itself is and has always been one of the most stable facets of student life, and the constitution which gives it legal existence has not always provided an accurate description of its structure.

Presently, the great preponderance of student activities is entirely within the jurisdiction of members of the Executive Council. The Assembly governs the budget, which control becomes more or less incidental once the budget is authorized. The new constitution proposes shifting budgetary matters to the Executive Council, whose primary concern it is, anyway. Thus the need for an Assembly is eliminated.

A second legitimate question is that of representation. Individual students want to know how their wishes are represented and major organizations, such as AWS, IOC, and IHC, ask concerning their new status. The student is represented by the members of the Executive Council, who are elected by the student body at large. The various organizations mentioned above have, until recently, not had a legal existence, constitutionally speaking.

One of the two new amendments passed in the last election give them representation on the Assembly. The new constitution would expand them to their former status, or provide direct the student body would place them on a Cabinet. The exact duties and powers of the cabinet are not defined.

From The Front

by PFC F. Gary Jacobson

The following is a poem which I found interesting exemplifies, to a great extent, the feelings of GI's fight for democracy in a distant and lonely land.

It was written by Airman 1st Class R. W. Stowe the 388 Tactical fighter wing.

March on! You Vietnams down,
Burn your draft and throw it down.

Show everyone you'll do as you might,
But show the Communists you're afraid to fight.

March on Vietnams, March on!
And do the Reds a good turn.

Because, someday, we'll all be free,
And you, in Hell will burn.

For turning your back on your fellow man, and saying it's wrong to lend a hand.

And no matter what you do or say,
We're here for a purpose and here we'll stay.

You speak of sayings and slogans and more,
Of "Better Red than Dead," and "Make Love not war."

Because we're here you can carry those signs.
Let the Communies rule?

But many have died and I too may die,
For what? For you, you fool.

At least you can march and carry those signs.
And speak whats in your head.

But with the Reds? Forget it Mae!
You'll get a bullet instead.

So march on, you Vietnams down,
Burn your draft and throw it down.

And someday soon your son will fight,
Because you think the courage, to admit we're right.

What makes you think we like it here,
We want to bleed and die?

If you think its fun, get a gun, and you give it a try.

You say its wrong and I agree,
Mans inhumanity to man.

But we'll defeat them at every turn,
to make them understand.

That mans first right,
Is to live as might,

They can't take that away.
Thats how its been since time began, and thats how it stay.

You think because your an American,
That freedom is yours alone.

They have seen now well we live,
All men are created equal.

They want it too, and get it they will,
For we will help anyone who looks to us,

No matter what you do.
So march on, you Vietnams down,

Burn your draft card and throw it down.
Show everyone you'll do as you might,

But show the Communists you're afraid to fight.

America's fighting men don't like the dirty, dangerous work they are delegated to do, but they realize that it is to be done by someone, and since they are appointed to the job, are dedicated to see it through.

storic Vote ...

Powell Ousted From House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ignoring his leadership's pleas, wrathful members voted Wednesday to oust Adam Clayton Powell from Congress. His lawyers said the vote, first in 46 years, was unconstitutional, and a court battle appeared likely.

The Harlem Democrat was sipping Scotch whisky and milk at the end of the world bar" onini Island in the Bahamas when he heard the news over a radio that the house had voted to deny him the oath of office and his seat for a 12th term.

"Why should I be angry?" Powell asked. It "depends upon your good people in Harlem" whether he runs for re-election, Powell added, but he firmly refused further comment on his intentions.

His lawyers said they would announce "any future course of action" in Powell's behalf in a few days.

The final House roll call was 243 to 176, with 123 Democrats and 130 Republicans voting to bar Powell and 117 Democrats and 59 Republicans favoring his admission.

The House floor and public galleries were jammed when the crucial vote came after a two-hour debate in which Democratic and Republican leaders had urged that the House not eat Powell.

If he were barred, said Rep Arch Moore Jr., R-W.Va., Powell could be re-elected by a bigger margin than ever by his Harlem constituents. He added that an ousted member would lead to a battle between Congress and the courts.

Before the special committee that investigated misconduct charges against him, Powell had based his defense on the need to fulfill the constitutional requirements for House membership.

HISTORIC OCCASION

During the debate, house members reminded each other it was a solemn, historic occasion in which the fate of an erring colleague was being considered.

But Watson aroused laughter from the galleries when he said Powell had shown no repentance for his misdeeds and added: "So far as I know, even now he is down at Blimpie with a glass in one hand and a woman in the other."

More, ranking Republicans on the committee argued by Rep Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., argued that by following the committee's recommendations, it would be "an humiliation by humiliation" for the Negro who had risen to chairmanship of the House Education and Labor Committee before his fellow Democrats deposed him last month.

NO PREJUDICE

The voting followed an at times emotional debate during which Powell's personal conduct was criticized both by members who wanted him thrown out and those that felt he should be seated.

"Adam Clayton Powell's morals are not up to par," said Rep. Ron Clark, MacGregor, R-Minn., a member of the special committee. "His conduct is revolting. His character is disreputable. And he has repeatedly insulted the house."

Hoffa Sentenced To Jail or Jury Tampering

HATTANOOGA, TENN. (UPI)—James R. Hoffa, the powerful masters Union President who reportedly could have paralyzed the union with a single strike order, ordered jailed Wednesday in serving as a "spoiled rich he order ended a three year war that started against him by his attorney, Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, whom the tough little labor leader refers to as a "spoiled rich

S. District Judge Frank W. on, the same judge that heard jury tampering case, issued order.

He told Hoffa to report at 9 a.m. today at the U.S. Marshal's office in Chattanooga.

In another case almost three to the day when Hoffa was convicted on March 4, 1964, jury found Hoffa guilty of rigging another federal panel that prized a conspiracy case against

Nashville in 1962. Hoffa charged in the conspiracy with sharing a $1-million kickback from a trucking firm which union held contracts. The trial ended with a hung jury.

Hoffa was in Baltimore, Md., along with other top leaders of millionaire-member unions until the arrest order was carried down. It came as no surprise to either he or his colleagues. The Teamsters' General Executive board reportedly met secretly with Hoffa Tuesday night and adopted a resolution turning over control of the union to Frank Fitzsimmons, a Vice President, "in the event of Hoffa's absence."

SUCCESSION HANDICAPPED

The move had been planned well in advance and the 53-year-old Fitzsimmons was handicapped by Hoffa to pick up the reins.

He, who is 53, will continue to draw his $100,000 a year salary although he is behind bars. In addition to the jury tampering conviction, Hoffa has been sentenced to five years for fraud and conspiracy in the use of Teamster pension funds.

Under his leadership, the Teamsters currently average 47 cents an hour more than the average wage paid in all of the nation's manufacturing industries. Their average yearly earnings is $7,719, and the over-the-road truckers average nearly $15,000 a year.

Hoffa started making headlines five years before he took over as President of the union when he appeared before a Senate committee investigating union racketeering.

He survived the investigation despite charges that he had been associated with racketeers and allowed them to hold office in his local.

Romney Plugs LBJ At Fund Raising Dinner

ASHINGTON (UPI)—Gov. George Romney of Michigan said Tuesday he would do nothing to interfere with President Johnson's search for peace. This was an answer to criticism that he had not taken a position on the war.

As a prospective candidate for president, Romney monopolized the attention of Reparations leaders in Washington for a sit-down dinner to raise $1 million or more for GOP senatorial congressional campaign committees.

Others booked to attend included Vice President Richard M. Nixon, 1964 presidential nominee George Goldwater and about 10 governors, including Ronald Reagan of California.

Speaking with reporters following breakfast given by Sen. Jacob Javits, N.Y., Romney said he was hopeful that Johnson's Vietnam policy would succeed.

"If what the President is doing will end the conflict in Vietnam, then no one will be happier than I," Romney said. "I am in no position to shape any of the basic policies concerning Vietnam."

Romney said the Vietnam situation could shift in six to nine months and that he saw no reason now for him to make proposals, particularly since he was trying to study it. Meanwhile, he said, he would do everything he could to let Johnson see if administration policies work.

Romney reiterated that he was not yet a candidate for the presidency but was surveying the outlook to determine whether the "people of the party and the people of the country want me to be a candidate."

Rumors Untrue

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House denied as "completely untrue" Wednesday a report that the entire top floor of Holy Cross Hospital in Austin, Tex., has been set aside for the birth of President Johnson's first grandchild by his daughter, Luci Baines.

Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter, repudiated published accounts that the hospital, operated by the Roman Catholic Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, had made arrangements to convert the fifth floor as a maternity ward for Mrs. Nugent.

White House sources previously had indicated that "when and if" Luci has a baby, it will be born in Austin.

Luci, 19, was married last August to Patrick J. Nugent who now works with the Johnson family radio-television station, KTBC, in Austin as a management apprentice. Luci is wearing maternity clothes these days but has shunned aside all questions by saying: "We're not in the announcing business" or "my marital status is a private affair and I intend to keep it that way."

AFA Cadets Suspended

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, COLO. (UPI)—The list of cadets kicked out of the Air Force Academy grew to 46 Wednesday when six more resigned for cheating. Officials said the number might reach 6.

An Academy official said seven varsity football players and two varsity basketball players either have resigned or are among another 14 cadets being investigated. The worst cheating scandal in the history of U.S. military schools in 1965 took 29 football players out of the Air Force Academy among 109 expelled.

In two years, 255 cadets have fallen from the ranks of the 12-year-old Colorado service school for breaking its tough honor code. These include 27 from 1966 and another 13 previously this year.

Western Athletic Conference

Puma Swimmers In Bid To Dethrone Redskins

By Matthew Morris
University Sportswriter

The Western Athletic Conference Swimming and Diving Championships begin today with time trials at 10 a.m. in the Richards Physical Education Bldg.

Defending the title which they have held the past four years will be the University of Utah Redskins. The BYU swimmers, however, who beat the Utes, 75-29, in a dual meet this season, are expected to be strong contenders for the championship.

UNM TOUGH

The University of New Mexico mormons, who placed second in the conference last year, are expected to place high again this year, and along with Wyoming, will have an influence in determining who wins the WAC crown.

Arizona and Arizona State have individual stars, but little depth.

The three-day meet will start at 10 a.m. daily. General admission prices for students with activity cards is 50¢. The public will be charged $1.00. Reserved seat prices will be slightly higher.

CLOSE DUALS

Today's events will feature more than one close race that may be decided by a judge's nod. An example is the first event, the 500-yard freestyle, which will pit BYU's Fred Baird against All-American Mike Garabaldi of Utah. A judge's decision at the BYU-Utah dual meet earlier separated the two giving Baird the top spot.

In the 200-yard medley event, defending champion Dennis Meyring of BYU will be one of the favorites. His biggest competition will probably come from Wyoming's Hans Ljungberg, who is currently the fastest man in the WAC in this event.

Glen Yamashita, another Cougar swimmer who has been making big splashes this season, may also press Meyring.

REAGAN PRESSED

Cougar co-captain Doug Reagan will attempt to retain his WAC crown in the 50-yard freestyle. Though favored, Reagan should be closely-pressed by teammate Reinhard Funk.

Don Gray of Utah and New Mexico's Carter Shalling will be among the obstacles Reagan and Funk must clear if they are to win.

In one-meter diving, Jay Ryno of BYU is the slight favorite, along with Bruce Gresley of Wyoming. Gresley was runner-up last year.

CHAMP TO NCAAs

The WAC diving champion goes on to the NCAA championships.

Today's final event will be the 400-yard medley relay. This event should be close, but the Utes are favored.

Why Y Wins—Coaches

Three years ago, BYU's swim team was non-existent. This year the Cougar swimmers completed a 17-meet dual season without a loss. One reason for this rapid rise is talented personnel.

Another reason — possibly the most important one — is an outstanding coaching staff headed by Walter Cryer, the chief architect in building a winner where there had been nothing for nearly 40 years.

One of Cryer's first steps in building up BYU's swimming program was an extensive recruiting campaign. To find out just how successful this recruitment drive has been, one only has to look down the roster of the swim team.

Of the 29 swimmers on the freshman and varsity rosters, 27 are from outside of Utah. Nineteen competitors are from California, a state known for outstanding swimmers.

Cryer lettered in swimming and gymnastics at the University of Illinois. As a senior he placed fourth in trampoline at the NCAA gymnastics tournament. Cryer was also active in track, wrestling and handball. In 1959 he placed sixth in the USHA National Handball Tournament.

Assisting Cryer are freshman coach Skip Brooks and diving coach Rollie Bestor. Brooks came to BYU in 1965. Prior to then he headed a U.S. Navy swimming program.

Bistor joined the BYU coaching staff this season after 13 years of service to swimming. As a collegian Bestor was an All-American diver at the University of Wisconsin.

Player Of The Week...

Meyring Has The Will

Editor's Note: Each week an outstanding swimmer is awarded a haircut at the BYU Barber Shop and a dress shirt from Belvoir's clothing store.

Dennis Meyring, the only graduating senior from the undefeated BYU swim team, is one of the biggest recruits the Cougar swimmers are rated among the tops in the nation.

Last year Dennis was the highest scoring individual in the Western Athletic Conference Swimmer Meet. He won the 400-yard individual medley, the 200-yard individual medley, the 200-yard butterfly, and was on the BYU 800-yard freestyle relay that placed second.

GOOD ADVICE
Coach Walt Cryer has a saying posted in the locker room which fits the Vallejo, Calif., speedster. "The will to win isn't as important as the will to prepare to win."

MAYERING

Dennis has followed the advice during his career. In his last dual meet performance against Utah State and the Air Force Academy, he took three firsts, a third place and set new meet records in the 200-yard individual medley, the 200-yard butterfly, and the 500-yard freestyle.

Meyring's time in the 500-yard freestyle—5:09.9—will likely be nationally ranked.

TOP PERFORMANCE

In BYU's dunking of the perennial conference champ Utah, Meyring won the 200-yard individual medley and placed second in the 200-yard butterfly which was won by teammate Ron Burton.

In winning the individual medley, Meyring set a new meet record as well as a new varsity record.

The many records set by Dennis Meyring may not stand for long. Many upcoming swimmers have their eye on breaking them.

But Meyring's output while a member of the BYU team worked like an after-jet in rocketing the Cougars to national prominence.

Radio-Gram Service Available Through Y Center Hobby Shop

Students who can't find time to write letters home can send a radio-gram of 25 words or less free of charge. These messages can be sent anywhere in the world from the Ham Radio Lab in the Hobby Shop of the Wilkinson Center.

Members of the Ham Radio Club will send the message to another Ham operator in the area who will in turn telephone the message to the intended person.

Students can learn to operate a ham radio system themselves by enrolling in a five-week Ham Radio Class. Taught by Steven K. Wrigley, the class will help to qualify a student for a ham radio operators license. Wrigley has taught amateur radio classes at BYU for two years and is an avid "ham."

The class will be taught on Monday nights. Information and registration forms can be obtained in 242 Herald R. Clark Building.

Sending a message to the family of a BYU student, is Steven K. Wrigley the instructor of the Ham Radio Class beginning March 13.

Dr. Geddes Consultant For Shriver

Dr. David D. Geddes, chairman of Men's Physical Education Department at BYU, was guest of R. Sargent and Eunice Kennedy Shriver recently at Timberlawn, the Shriver estate in the suburbs of Washington, D.C.

With four others, he was asked to visit as a consultant to the Shrviers. Dr. Geddes was co-director of a seminar at BYU last summer sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation for physical education for the retarded. It trained faculty members from other universities and colleges.

ADVISED SHRIVER

In addition to his responsibilities as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, director of the Poverty Program, and the Peace Corps, Shriver serves as executive director of the Kennedy Foundation, which devotes its entire efforts to mental retardation.

The consultants advised Shriver on an address he will deliver at the establishment of the John Fogarty Foundation in Providence, R.I. The late John Fogarty was senior senator from Rhode Island and established a foundation for the retarded. He also was responsible for much of the federal legislation in recent years for research and programs for the retarded.

Miss Knight Named Norsemen Favorite

Norsemen Sports Club has named a Debby Knight as its sweetheart for the 1966-67 academic year. Miss Knight is from Shreveport, Louisiana, and is a freshman majoring in CDFR. Currently she is a second lieutenant in Angel various jobs in the primary, MIA, and here at school in the Relief Society. Her goals in life are to be married in the temple, to lead an active life in the church, to complete college, and to work with people.

Miss Knight's hobbies include cooking, playing the piano, and meeting people. She loves BYU and the atmosphere it gives, and is proud of being a Mormon.

Miss Knight first learned that she had been chosen Norsemen sweetheart while she was explaining to her parents by telephone that she had not been chosen.

BYU Theater

Slates Two Plays

BYU Theatre patrons have a double billing to choose from the next three weeks when two plays will run simultaneously. The "Dragon" is playing in the Pardoe Drama Theatre.

Tickets are now on sale for the next Arens Theatre production, "Hobson's Choice" by Harold Brighouse. Tickets are free with activity card, $1.50 without. Because of the size of the Arens Theatre, seats are limited.

Dr. Albert O. Mitchell said the following regarding "Hobson's Choice": "...Hobson's Choice" is a folk comedy in a fine British crafted man named Harold Brighouse. His wide appeal is partly because of Brighouse's faithful depiction of the fascinating folk he knew so intimately in Salford, near Manchester, England. The play is not just funny; it is rightly interesting because it shows people doing simple things in an interesting way."

"Hobson's Choice" opens Wednesday, March 8 at 8:15 p.m. in the Margrets Arens Theatre. Tickets are now on sale from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Harris Fine Arts Center box office.

Auto Lights Important

Days are shorter during the winter months, reminds the Utah Safety Council, which means that more driving occurs during darkness. So it's important to pay more attention to a vehicle's "seeing system"—its headlights, taillights, directional signals, windshield wipers and defrosters.

Class Changes Involve 40 Per Cent Of Students

Forty percent of the BYU student body participated in the change of registration service offered by the University.

"This changing is entirely out of proportion," said Bill Sampson, Registrar. "A change in registration should be offered only to the person who has a real need, for example, someone who has found a job after registration and has a conflict."

Sampson said that valid changes should always be accommodated. Among the valid reasons for change were conflict with employment, the late opening of a class previously closed but needed for graduation, or mistakenly for two classes held at the same hour.

"There are also invalid reasons,"

Sampson said. "Some one may not like 7 a.m. classes, he may be unhappy with the teacher, he may want to be in a class with a friend, or he may want to have either his morning or afternoon free for pursuit of activities other than study or work."

Sampson feels that the three percent of free change in registration necessary and should be used, and that most valid ones can be made in this time.

According to Sampson, 90 students registered late this semester. When asked what steps might be taken on the student's part to reduce the large number of changes, Sampson suggested first that each student sterling have two or three alternatives for each class.

"Computer registration may help eliminate a lot of the confusion present in the system registration now used, and a single time prevent this large number of changes," Sampson added.

Under the computer program the student will file his schedule in, and the entire process will be done by machine. This program, now in use at the University of Utah, is for adoption by BYU in the future, according to Sampson.
